Where we go

Jane, Peter, Mummy and Daddy all want to go for a walk.

"We will go up the hill," says Daddy.

"Yes," says Peter, "let us go up the hill. It is fun up there."

Pat the dog wants to go. He jumps up and down. "Yes," says Peter to Pat, "you can come. You can come for a walk with us. You can come up the hill."

"No," says Jane to her cat. "You cannot come for a walk. You will be at home. You can have some milk."

"Come on," says Daddy. "Off we go. Off we go up the hill."

Mummy, Daddy and the children walk up to the farm. They go by the pigs. There are two big pigs and two little ones.

Jane likes the little pigs. She gives them some of her cake. Peter has some apples and he gives some of them to one of the big pigs. "This big pig likes apples," he says. "He wants all of them now."

"Where are Mummy and Daddy?" says Jane.

"They are by the cows," says Peter. "They want to get some milk for us. Come on, Jane, and have some milk now."

The two children walk to Mummy and Daddy. They want some milk.

. Out in the sun

Jane is in bed.
Mum comes in to make her get up.

"Come on," she says. "Get up, please, Jane. Peter and Dad are up, and the sun is out."

Jane gets out of bed.

She looks out of the window. "I can see Peter and the dog down there," she says.

Peter looks up at the window. He sees his sister.

"Come on down, Jane," he says. "We're all up. It's good to be out in the sun. We must go out soon."

"Yes," says his sister, "I'll be down soon. I must help Mum and then come down."
